Course Description

Audiologists and speech-language pathologists may face challenges in adhering to adopted codes of ethics and practicing in a manner consistent with the prescriptions contained therein. Defining what is ethical is often opaque as most ethical situations are multi-faceted with countervailing considerations that must be weighed to reach the best possible outcome. The American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA) Code of Ethics (2016) will be highlighted, ethical frameworks will be described, and a decision-making model will be delineated which can be applied as practice issues are encountered. Situations depicting potential ethical violations and dilemmas in a variety of practice settings will be analyzed by participants.

Instructional Level: Intermediate

Learner Outcomes

At the end of this presentation, attendees will be able to:

1. Delineate an ethical decision-making model
2. Analyze scenarios that constitute potential ethical violations and dilemmas
3. Adhere to ethical standards in the daily practice of audiology and speech-language pathology

About the Speaker: This is Judith's 40th year working in schools. Judith retired in 2017 as an SLP working in public schools. Since then she has participated in the field of Speech/Language Pathology in several ways, through volunteer opportunities and with agencies.
